

Pregnancy / Childbirth / Childcare Support Systems Tohoku University

Tohoku University developed the “General Employer Action Plans” based on the “Act on Advancement of Measures to Support the Raising of Next-Generation Children,” and has been expanding support systems for balancing work and family life as well as creating a more employee-friendly environment.

This pamphlet provides an overview of our childbirth/childcare support systems (maternal protection, maternity leave, childcare leave, leave of absence, overtime work restriction, childbirth benefits, etc.), to enable our employees to actively use these systems.

We ask all University staff members—those raising children and their superiors and colleagues—to better understand these systems and provide cooperation and support for a better balance between work and family life.

MEMO

Benefits Available

Childcare leave benefits (from employment insurance program)

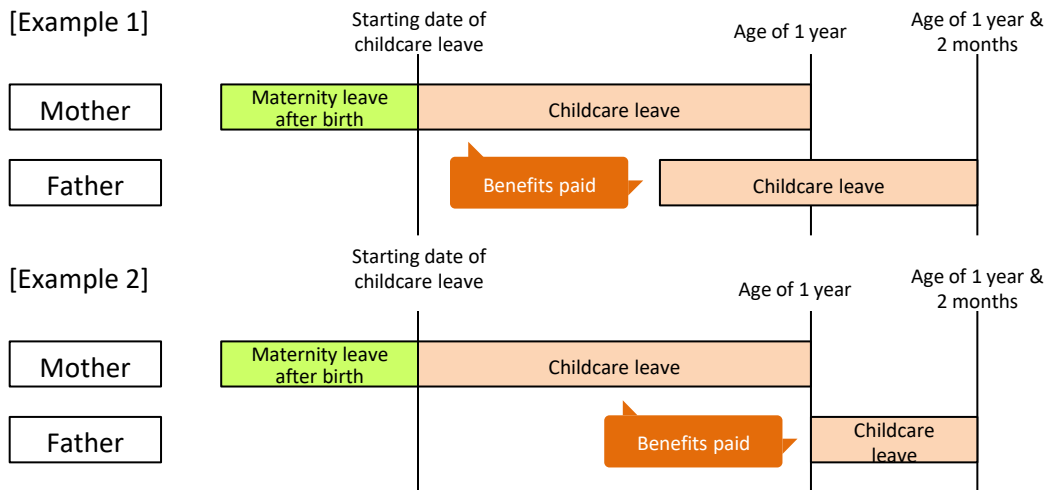

An insured person who leaves work to care for a child under the age of one year or one year and two months^{*1} (under the age of one year and six months if eligible for extension of the benefit period^{*2}) is eligible for childcare leave benefits if there are at least 12 months in total, during the two-year period preceding the date on which the leave started, in which the number of days on which his/her wage payment is based is 11 or more (including months with 80 or more hours as the basis for payment of wages if such months are less than 12 months). Since October 2022, childcare leave can be taken twice in installments^{*3}.

In principle, the amount of childcare leave benefits during the base paid period (one month) is calculated as follows:

The amount of the benefits = daily wages at the start of leave x paid days x 67% (50% after six months of leave)

*1 Mom & Dad Child Care Leave Plus

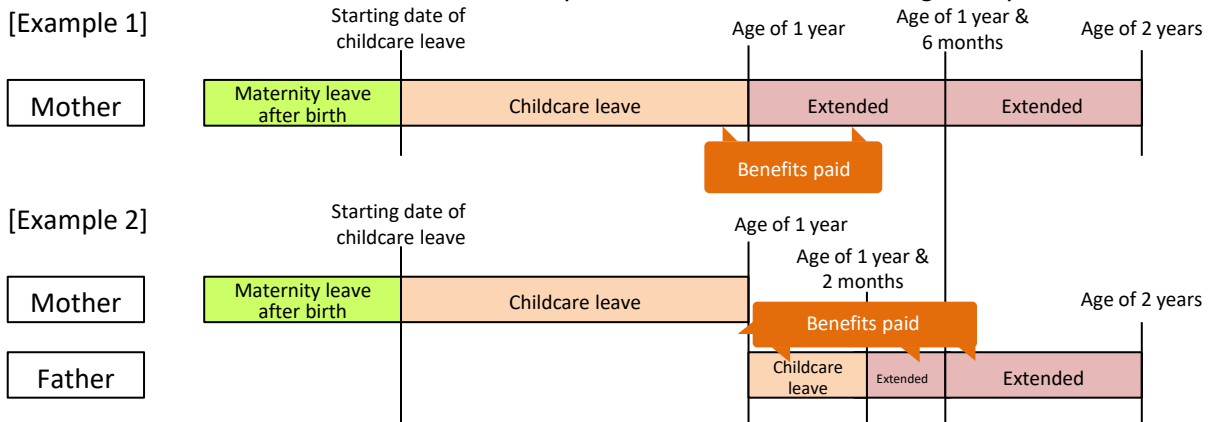

When both parents take child-care leave and meet certain conditions, childcare leave benefits are provided for up to one year until the day before the child reaches one year and two months of age.

*2 Extension of the Benefit Period

If certain conditions are met, such as the case where the employee's application is not accepted by any day-care center for children,^{*} the period for which childcare benefits are received are extended until the day before the child reaches the age of one year and six months.

If you take additional childcare leave after the day your child reaches the age of 1 year and 6 months, the period for which the benefits are received is extended until the day before the child reaches the age of 2 years.

(Note)

The "day-care center for children" referred to herein means nursery centers defined in Article 39 of the Child Welfare Act of Japan, prefecture-certified centers for early childhood education and care, and nursery facilities authorized by municipal governments, including home daycare services, small-sized childcare services, employer-provided childcare services, and home-visit daycare services. Unauthorized childcare facilities are not included.

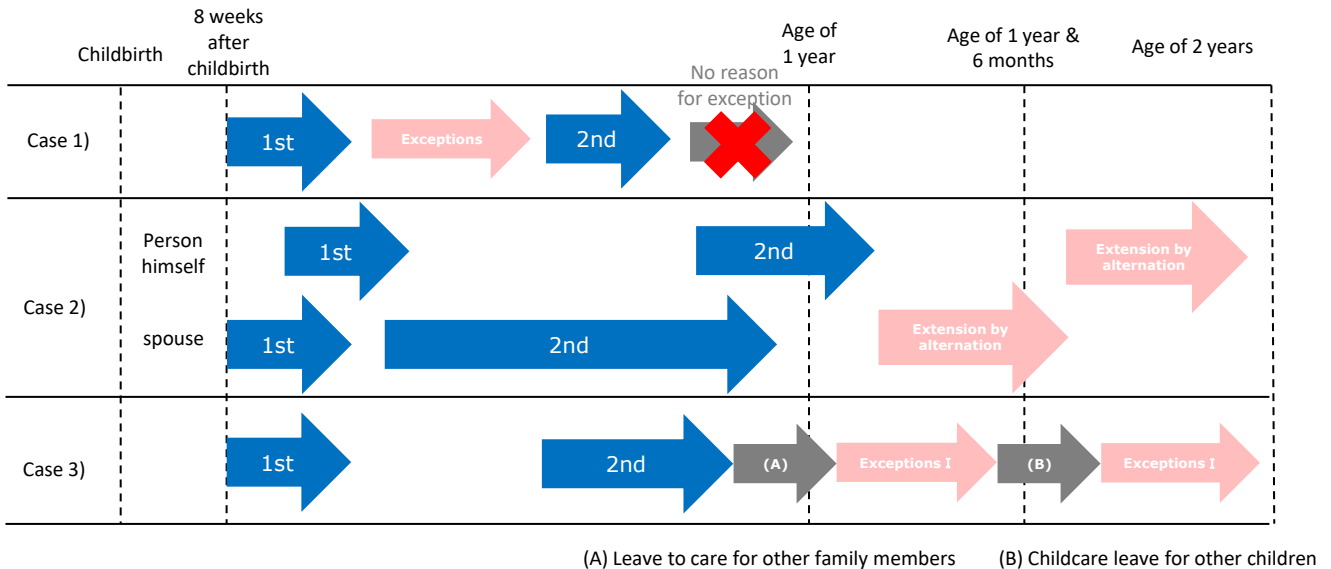

*3 Split Childcare Leave

- In principle, childcare leave benefits are available for up to two childcare leaves for a child under one year of age.
- Benefits are not available for the third or subsequent childcare leave. However, the following exceptions apply.
- In addition, if there is a reason for extending childcare leave and the couple takes turns taking childcare leave (extension by alternation), they may receive childcare leave benefits only once for each of the following periods: from 1 year to 1 year and 6 months and from 1 year and 6 months to 2 years of age.

[Reasons for exceptions to the frequency limitation]

- When childcare leave ends due to the start of maternity leave or childcare leave for another child, or family care leave for another family member, and the new leave ends due to the death of the eligible child or family member, etc.
- When a spouse who is taking care of a child under one year of age who is eligible to apply for childcare leave becomes unable to take care of the child due to death, injury, etc., or because the spouse no longer lives with the child due to dissolution of marriage, etc.
- When a child under one year of age who is the subject of a request for childcare leave needs care for more than 2 weeks due to injury, illness, etc.
- When a child under one year of age who is the subject of a request for childcare leave wishes to use childcare services at a daycare center, etc. and has applied for such services, but such services will not be provided for the time being.

Example of Counting Times

In addition, a childcare leave at birth program was established, which can be taken for up to four weeks within an 8 week period.

This leave at birth can be taken twice in installments and is eligible for benefits (Childcare leave at birth benefit).

[Payment Requirements]

- At least 12 complete months with at least 11 basic days of wage payment (or if not, at least 80 hours of working time) in the two years prior to the start of the leave.
- The number of working days during the period of absence must be less than or equal to a maximum of 10 days (if more than 10 days, the number of hours worked must be less than 80 hours). (These are the number of days and hours for a 28-day absence; if shorter than 28 days, the number of days and hours will be reduced in proportion to the number of days worked.) *Tohoku University employees are not permitted to work during the period of leave.

[allowance]

Daily wage at the start of leave (in principle, the amount obtained by dividing the wage for the six months prior to the start of childcare leave by 180) × number of days paid × 67%.

(The number of days paid will be totaled to 180 days, which is the maximum number of days for which the childcare leave benefit rate is 67%.)

Childcare leave benefits (from mutual aid association)

When an employee who takes childcare leave is not eligible for childcare benefits under the employment insurance program, he/she will receive childcare leave benefits from a mutual aid association.

The childcare leave benefits are provided during the period until the child reaches the age of one year or one year and two months (or the age of one year and six months in cases where an extension of time is granted).

In principle, the amount of childcare leave benefits is calculated as follows:

The amount of the benefits = daily amount of standard remuneration wages x days on childcare leave x 67% (50% after six months of leave)

Childbirth allowance/family allowance for dependent's childbirth (from mutual aid association)

When a mutual aid association member gives birth, she will receive a childbirth allowance of ¥500,000. (When a member's dependent gives birth, the payment is made as a family allowance for the dependent's childbirth.) For multiple births, ¥40,000 is additionally paid per baby born. For a childbirth at a medical institution that does not participate in the Japan Obstetric Compensation System for Cerebral Palsy, the amount of the lump-sum allowance is ¥488,000, with ¥40,000 for each of multiple babies.

Exemption from payment of mutual aid premium (or social insurance premium)

By submitting a claim, premiums will be exempted from 42 days (98 days in the case of multiple pregnancies) before and 56 days after childbirth during the maternity leave. (The actual exemption period is on a monthly basis, from the month in which the maternity leave before childbirth begins to the month preceding the month in which the day following the end of the postpartum leave falls (or the month in which the maternity leave after childbirth ends if the end of the postpartum leave falls on the last day of the month)).

If you take childcare leave, you are exempted from paying premiums by filing a report if you meet certain requirements ;if you are in the period of childcare leave (including childcare leave at birth, the same below) at the end of the month, or if you took childcare leave for 14 days or more during the month, or if you took childcare leave for more than one month for premiums related to bonuses.
